PRISONER CREMATED IN ALLENVILLE CALABOOSE

Mike Daniels was burned to death by the burning of the Allenville calaboose, early last Sunday morning, he having been placed there the night before for stabbing a man during a fight.

Daniels bore the reputation as being a bad man and lived at Advance.

Daniels and a man named Jackson had been drinking pretty freely during the day and trouble broke out between them, which ended in a fight. Daniels slashed Jackson several times with a knife, wounding him, for which he was arrested and placed in jail.

The marshal testified he thoroughly searched the prisoner before locking him up, and failed to find any matches concealed on his person.

Fire was discovered coming from the roof of the calaboose about 3 o'clock in the morning, but before aid could be given the man, the entire building was ablaze.

All that was left of the unfortunate man was his charred head and a part of his spinal column. All the rest of the body had been reduced to ashes.

The coroner jury rendered a verdict Sunday afternoon that Daniels came to his death by being burned during his incarceration in the Allenville jail, but did not fix the responsibility for the fire as there were no evidence from whence it originated.

Jackson, the man with whom Daniels had the trouble, left the doctor's office about 2 o'clock, and the fire occurred about an hour later, and while he had been heard to make threats against Daniels there was no evidence to connect him with the burning of the jail.

Daniels was about 24 years old, the son of Rev. John Daniels of Advance, and was a married man. His wife had left him just about a week ago because of his wild and dangerous conduct.

The remains of Daniels were shipped to Advance.

Crosses Bridge on Horse.

Mortal fear that a posse of armed white men soon would be clattering at his heels lost its terror in an unidentified negro horse thief who, caught astride his stolen mount on a narrow plank runway over the Thebes railroad bridge across the Mississippi River, put the whip to his Dobbys' flanks and scurried ahead of a swift running Cotton Belt passenger train to safety on the Illinois shore at 1:40 a. m. today.

The horse fell on the slippery passageway, but a few feet from his rider's goal, hurthing his human burden to shore and liberty. The panting engine behind won by a hair's breadth, crushed off the equine's hind legs and tossed the quivering mass of flesh to the tracks and sped on into the fastness of the gray morn. The negro rider took to the lowland timber and was reported traveling in the direction of Gale, Ill.

The horse was the property of Capt. Smoker, of Edna, Mo. The captain was awakened in the night by a whinny and the patter of hoofs as the invader of his stable lashed his booty into a gallop.

To Retire.

The Cape Normal football team will play Kirksville today at the Cape.

Razing jail.

The contract for tearing down the old jail building was awarded to Scott Mitchell last week. His bid was $225. The County court rejected five other bids ranging from $390 to $800. This jail was erected in the year of 1851. All the building material remains the property of the county.

The men wrecking this old building have found a number of old rusty saws, undoubtedly left by prisoners who occupied the cells fifty years ago.

Took the Count

A firey little Cape Girardeau county school marm formulated a set of school rules and said any pupil, big or little, who violates any of those rules, must take a whipping or leave school. The first to break over was a big boy 18 years old and six feet long.

"Come here Joe," she said, "and take your punishment or leave school."

Joe walked up for his medicine and grabbing the little teacher before she could make a pass raised her up and almost hugged the breath out of her. "Joe" she said as soon as she could breathe, "stop that this minute?" But Joe only hugged the tighter. Then she dropped her switch and loosened her corset so she could get a good breath, and said, "Joseph I will give you just 20 minutes to stop that or will punish you in an inch of your life."

Joe took the count and went back to his books.

The Folly of Fear

The most deadly element for marring and dwarfing lives is fear. It demoralizes character, destroys ambition, induces or causes diseases and paralyzes happiness and achievement in self and others.

It has not one redeeming quality. It is all evil.

Once we thought ourselves dependent on ability or skill or fate or chance. But enough progress has been made in psychology to enable us to know that ability and skill are results rather than causes.

It is the mental attitude that determines the life, and thanks to Creator who gives us the light only as we go on in the pathway the mental attitude becomes more and more firmly fixed the further we go.

However, the hand may fall at its appointed or chosen task, however the heart may falter along the way, the mind, which is fortifying both, can and will, if allowed, cover the deficiency in the one instance and banish the halting in the other.

So what is there to fear? The forces that control your life are in yourself, not in others. Whatever seeds of disaster may be ripening to fruition were sown long ago in your vices and follies, and ripen they will in spite of all you can do.

There is no help in fear. Nature works by laws that are immutable and that vary not the slightest in the all the cycles of infinite time.

You may be sure that if you are mentally and morally in harmony with the laws of life all will be well with you. The fiercest storms will turn to gentle breezes to waft you onward. But if you are not in harmony with these laws all will be wrong with you.

Fear cannot help you.

Nothing can,

You may cower and quiver, but the cowering and quivering will only the more weaken and degrade you.

The mental attitude determines your destiny as the rudder determines the course of a ship.

The attitude of courage, good cheer, health and kindness leads to pleasant pathways.

There is nothing to fear but fear.

Common Pleas Docket

The November term of the Cape Girardeau Court of Common Pleas will meet Monday, November 28. The first day will be taken up handling probate matters, there being twenty-eight cases on the docket.

On the civil dockets there are a lot of old cases that are covered with moss, but which for one reason or another are still dragging along.

Fifteen mismated couples are seeking relief in divorces. H. E. Alexander, prosecuting attorney, is bringing suit for the state against the Frisco railroad for damages for the violation of its contracts with the city of Cape Girardeau.

Charles McDonald, the negro who was shot so badly at Neely's Landing, when he was on a train going to Crystal City, has through his attorneys, Lane & Alexander, brought suit against the Frisco railroad for damages.

Prosecuting Attorney H. E. Alexander is suing the Kettle River company for doing business in Missouri without a license.

There are a number of damage cases, land suits, suits on notes and accounts, etc.—Cape Republican.

BURGLARY INSURANCE

The best burglary insurance policy ever written is a checking account with a bank; saves carrying a lot of money around with you and yet you have it any minute you want it. If all persons carried checking accounts and wore a check book in their inside pockets, the hold-up guys would go out of business.
